PERFORMANCE NOTES

In this work the five performers play additional folk and percussion instruments. These are: manjeeras (small finger cymbals about two inches in diameter), kazoo, flexatone, strumstick (a species of American one-stringed banjo or mandolin), and kalimba (African thumb piano).

All the players will need an extra chair on which to place and suspend instruments. The chairs should have either soft seats or a cloth placed on them to reduce noise when taking up or putting down instruments. The manjeeras should be suspended from chair backs or music stands, and struck with a metal beater. (A three inch nail is about the right size.)
